MR. BANCROFT'S NEW WORK .- Literary and Historical Miscellanies. By George Bancroft. New York: Harper & Brothers.

Those who may place themselves under the instruction of such a teacher as Mr. Bancroft may consider themselves unusually fortunate. He is a masterly scholar, a profound thinker, and is the possessor of a style of speech that is tonce grand and simple, clear and concise, free. flowing, and thoroughly rich. We think it a matter of congratulation that two such masters of the historic style as Prescott and Bancroft have gratified the American mind by recovering from a fugitive position, their miscellaneous writings, for the purpose of placing them in a permanent form for the enriching of libraries. No respectable collection of American literature can be complete without the Miscellanies of Prescott and Bancroft. If we had the space to spare, we should be pleased to give an analytical notice of the labors of Mr. Bancroft, contained in the work before us. But we are just at this time so much crowded with important and pressing matter that we shall fail to do justice to the varied and sterling merits of this invaluable work. Let the reader remember the importance of a good stand-point for the survey of anything, no matter what it may be, and then bear in mind the pre-eminent advantages that Mr. Bancroft enjoys and he may make some approach to the formation of an estimate of the character of Mr. Bancroft's labors upon the themes of these miscellanies. He is one of the first of classical scholars, a thorough master of the English language, and the whole range of German mind has been traversed by Mr. Bancroft, hand in hand with its most brilliant and ablest examplars. Heyne, Gethe, Schiller, Herder, Lessing, Wolf, and the starry hosts that blaze in the constellations of German thought, are as familiar to him as the authorities who have contributed the material of his immortal history. There is scarcely to be found anywhere such an exposition of the workers in German literature as in Mr. Bancroft's essay on the subject in this volume. We know of no one who has painted so accurate a likeness of Gothe as Mr. Bancroft spreads upon his easel in this work. Every one will admit, we think, that it is painted in the very spirit of Cromwell's injunction to the artist who was about to put him on canvas "Paint me as I am, Lely," was the direction, "every wrinkle and protuberance, or I will pay you nothing." We are glad that Mr. Bancroft has followed this law, for Gothe, with all his high and glorious gifts of genius, was one of the poorest, meanest, and most beggarly specimens of the type of manhood that any generation of men ever saw. Look at some of Bancroft's graphic touches: "Gathe, who in youth was indifferent to God and reverential only toward rank and the Bourbons - Goethe, who, in his maturity, while his country was trodden under foot by foreign invaders, quietly studied Historical Society in 1854, on "the necessity, Chinese, or made experiments in natural philosophy-Goethe, who wrote a fulsome marriagesong to grace the nuptials of Napoleon-Goethe, the man of letters, who, in his age becoming a Duke's minister, almost alone, with but one stood out against the freedom of the press-Goethe is the poet, who represents the morals, the politics, the imagination, the character of the broken down aristocracy, that hovered on the skirts of defeated dynasties, and gathered as a body-guard around the bier of legitimacy. Goethe is inferior to Voltaire, not in genius and industry only, but still more in morality. The Frenchman had humanity; he avenged the persecuted; he had courage, and dealt vigorous blows for men who were wronged. His influence was felt in softening the asperity of Codes, in asserting freedom of mind, in denouncing the severity that could hate Protestantism and philosophy even to disfranchisement, exile, and the shedding of blood. But Goethe never risked a frown of a German Prince for anybody. He was a prudent man, and, in the great warfare of opinion, kept quietly out of harm's way. On religious subjects he mystified; on political subjects he was discreetly silent, except that he adored rank; worshipping birth like intellect, and ever ready with flattery for the ruling powers." A more truthful picture was never drawn. His ardent votaries have called him myriad-minded, but no point of his large mind ever responded to mere humanity in suffering; no kindling light from his genius ever shot into the prison of oppression; no cheering voice ever came from him for the struggling down-trodden; no teaching from him ever pointed to the ways of truth, unless those ways led to palaces and dukes. His life was open to the sarcasm which old Kastner, the mathematician, utter against scholars, who, in want of manliness, strain after the honors of nobility. In his greatness on the skin of another." This covers Goethe like a blanket.

Reader, if the gifts of high intellect come only by the sacrifice of all that is noble and left you a heart. It is better to have sympathy for the unfortunate, gentleness for the erring, courage for the oppressed, and hope in the progress of man, than to be able to walk the fields of space with La Place. But we are forgetting our want of room for a proper review of this book, and we must dismiss the article on German literature with a mere enumeration of the leading items of which it is composed. It opens with a masterly disquisition upon the resources, opportunities, glories, and achievements of that literature, and this is followed by a gallery of portraits of the great masters in the movements of the modern German mind. These masters are Bodmer, Gottsched and his greater wife, Haller, Klopstock, Lessing, Wieland, Winckelman, Copernicus, Kepler, Blumenbach, Heyne, Wolf, Herder, John Paul Richter, Hoffman, Burger, Voss, the Schlegels, Tieck, Schiller, and Goethe. No matter what familiarity a man may have with their history, Bancroft's sketches of them will instruct and gratify. The opening essay of this volume is devoted to Temperaments, written upwards of thirty years ago. This is the only essay in the book that is unworthy of Mr. Bancroft's reputation. If he had waited six years, until the publication of M. Thomas's Treatise on Temperaments, he would not have written this unadulterated specimen of old fogyism. Mr. Baucroft's essay is devoted to the very ancient and fishy theory of the humoralists. He discourses on the sanguineous, the athletic, the bilious, the phlegmatic, the melancholic, the nervous, and the tem pered temperaments. The whole theory is rotten to the core. No theory of temperaments, founded upon anything but the regions of the body, is worth a moment's study. That is the theory on which M. Thomas founds his doctrines. It was written in French, but we have never seen a translation of it. But it richly deserves an English dress.

The essay entitled "The ruling passion in death," is a paper of more than ordinary interest. It is admirably illustrated with striking and valuable anecdotes.

But the charm and the value of these miscellanies will be found in the department called "The studies of history." In this portion of the work, Mr. Bancroft need not fear the rivalry of the great English essayists. The paper on the "Economy of Athens" is as infinitely in advance of Sir Archibald Allison's essay on the subject as the style is. It deserves the careful study of all republicans. "The decline of the Roman people" is also an essay of remarkable power and genius. Mr. Bancroft might safely rest his reputation on it. In depth of philosophy it surpasses Gibbon, and more than rivals him in the elegance of its rhetoric. We earnestly wish that every American reader could be induced to study it, for it blazes in light upon the forces of republicanism.

The other papers in this department of the miscellanies are on "Russia" and on the "The Wars of Russia and Turkey in 1829." These will be read with avidity at this time, and the careful reader will find great profit in the peru-

The remainder of the work is devoted to "Occasional Addresses." They are on "Calvin," "The office of the people in art, government, and religion," a capital paper on "Democracy," "A Eulogy of William Ellery Channing," "an oration commemorative of Andrew Jackson," and the great oration before the New York the reality, and the promise of the progress of the human race." Even if the Miscellanies had no other merit, this last oration would be sufficient to insure it a vital existence. We made long quotations from it at the time it was first

The publication of this work is a notable event in American literature. It should adorn every library in the land, for it will enrich the noblest collection of books.

The type from which this work was prepared for print were all set up by machinery. This is the first achievement of the invention. The Harpers deserve the thanks of book-lovers for having given Mr. Bancroft's rich, glowing, and glorious thoughts in a style of typography that is in harmony with the beauty and substance of the mental part of the work.

THE BRIDGE OF BOATS—Sebastopol, April 28. No interesting incident occurred on the 24th, if we except the total destruction of the bridge of boats connecting the southern part of the city with the suburbs. Our battery No. 35, which mounts two howitzers of 80 and a large mortar knocked it to pieces. To our great ment, however, the next morning we beheld a thousand yards further another bridge of boats constructed during the night. The activity of the Russians is incredible. Thus, until we push our approaches nearer, they can defy our artillery and cross over in all security.

This is only one of the numerous instances where the Russians have shown during the progress of the siege their untiring energy and activity in repairing damages and mishaps.

The drought has caused serious danger in New Orleans of bringing about disease. The cisterns are entirely exhausted, and those who are unable to pay for water carried in carts and have to resort to the river for it, the water of allusion to the parchment on which the patent which produces generally disease. The Bullewas written, he said: "Ah, the fellow rises on tin calls on the authorities to come to the relief Garrett, on West street, between Chestnut and the ruin of his like; one foolish sheep builds of the poor.

FARMERS' Exchange.-In most of the counties of Kentucky it is the custom of the neighboring farmers to assemble in town on county court days, which is usually one day in each true in manhood, thank the Providence that has month, for the purpose of meeting their friends given you an humble order of mind and has and neighbors, to buy and sell and to transact such other business as they may chance to have with one another. In Fayette, Bourbon, and other counties in the State, the county court days are days of unusual interest on account of the amount of business that is transacted. In Bourbon, for instance, the value of the mules, horses, cattle, and other property that changes hands on each county court day is immense.

In Jefferson county things are managed differently. We have no regular monthly court days, and, in a city containing the number of people that Louisville does, it is more difficult for farmers to meet with one another, because they have no regular appointed place of meeting. In view of these facts, the idea has been suggested to us by several members of the Southwestern Agricultural and Mechanical Association that the grounds of the association are a most appropriate place for holding regular monthly meetings of the farmers of the county and members of the association, for the purpose of buying and selling all kinds of stock, farm products, and to transact such other business as the occasion may afford, and to discuss the various topics connected with farming, &c.

We throw out these hints at the request of several influential farmers of the county.

NEW YORK TRIBUNE AND WHITE SLAVES .-The editors of the New York Tribune profess to entertain a holy horror for anything like slavery. They regard the man who purchases and holds slaves for life, who rears and supports them in infancy and childhood, when they cannot work, and who feeds, clothes, and houses them in old age, as a monster-a sort of Devil on earth. There is no language of denunciation and malignant vituperation too coarsely violent and abusive for those slavery-hating editors to use against such a man. They affect to think it a dreadful sin to hold African labor on the lifetenure, but they are willing, and regard it all right and perfectly proper, to buy and sell white labor forever, provided it is for terms of one or more years, and that money can be made by the speculation. They are willing to pay 60 per cent. of its value for white labor that it cost them nothing to form, and they will remorselessly cast off the laborer to starve or die when he is too old to work. In New York, to remedy the evils that result from an excess of unemployed laborers, some benevolent societies have proposed that they shall be sent into the interior, where they are needed to work on farms. To this the Tribune objects, and says:

This matter of sending laborers where labor is wanted can never be perfected by any benevo-lent society or private enterprise, except such a one as we have sometimes alluded to in these columns—that is, an association with a capital to buy and sell labor; an association which can say to every unemployed man whose services in the country would be worth $100 a year, "we will give you $60 and take our risk of finding an employer and the expense of sending you to him, and if we can make a profit we shall do so." It is our belief that such an enterprise, if properly conducte, would be successful. Such an association; the only one that can meet the wants of a certain class of our society, and give satisfaction to those of our well-meaning cotemporaries and correspondents who are constantly advising us to "send them to the coun-

LOUISVILLE, 1855. The alarm of fire last night was caused by the burning of a stable belonging to Mr. Walnut.

THE STREET SWEEPING MACHINE.-This machine operated on Walnut street for a short time evening before last when the rain came up and operations were suspended. After the rain it made a trial on Third street, between Main and Market, and performed admirably. It is not claimed by the owners of the machine that they can remove the dirt when it is permitted to accumulate, but they do claim that with their machines they can prevent the accumulation. At any rate they are willing to enter into a contract with the city to keep the streets clean, and at a price not exceeding the present annual expenditure for that purpose. It matters little how they will accomplish this. If they fail to fulfill the contract, the bonds required will protect the city from any loss. If they succeed, it will be something that never has been done here, and will add to the health and credit of the

In whatever light we view the proposition made to the city by Smith, Seckel, & Co., they are fair and just. The city cannot lose anything, but, if successful, it will be a large gain-We hope that the city council will give the subject their favorable consideration.

Both boards of the city council were in session last night. But little of importance was done. The board of aldermen passed a resolution authorizing the Mayor to make a contract with the proprietors of the street sweeping machine, and in the common council it was referred to the street committees.

A resolution passed the common council appropriating $2,000 toward a clock to be placed on the Walnut Street Baptist Church, and to be subject to removal at the option of the council at the termination of one year. The church appropriates $800 toward the clock.

The race yesterday was no race. Two nags started, but one of the riders was thrown in the first mile, and the other then went around the track at his ease and took the purse.

P. S. The horse which threw his rsder was that of John Campbell, and the boy also belonged to Mr. C. It is feared that he cannot survive the injuries.

FIRES .- At Mobile, on the 25th ult., the cotton pickery of Addison Leavers, with all its contents, and six or seven houses adjoining, were destroyed by fire. Total loss $15,000; partially insured. At New Orleans on the same day, the grocery stores of Martin & Labarre and Beltran & Co. were destroyed by fire.

The river was about at a stand yesterday or rising slowly with 5 feet 3 inches water in the canal. The weather was showery yesterday and last evening it turned cool.

The Cumberland was rising at Nashville or Thursday evening and it was raining hard.

We insert in another column a translation from the record of proceedings of the Spanish Cortes, in session May 3d. The extract is an interesting one, and throws much light on the questions recently mooted between Mr. Soule and Mr. Perry.

TENTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT .- A Democratic convention met at Covington on Monday, and on the fourth ballot nominated Major H. C. Harris. He accepted the nomination, and in an able address bitterly denounced the Know-Nothings.

Texas dates to the 22d ult. have been received in New Orleans. Heavy rains had fallen throughout the State, and from their effects the crops promised well. There is nothing else of importance.

John Shields charged with killing Patrick Hoey in New Orleans on the 20th of December last, has been found guilty of murder in the first degree.

THE LONDON TIMES ON AMERICAN SYMPA-THIES .- A distinguished American citizen addressed a communication to the London Times, in which he gave the views of the people of the United States on the present Russian war, and explained why they did not sympathize with the allies in their struggle to weaken the power of Russia and check the growth of her commerce. On this communication the Times comments as follows:

We adverted cursorily on a former occasion to a letter which appeared in our columns from an able correspondent, well known to our readers under the signature, not inapplicable to him in either sense, of a "States-man." The object of our correspondent is not what we should have hoped it would have been—to clear the freemen of America from the stigma implied in the charge that the sympathies of America are not on our side. To the great mass of men, who judge matters on their first aspect, and have neither leisure nor inclination to sound the depths of political questions, there is something shocking, and even revolting, in the admission that, though policy may keep the United States neutral in the present contest, and interest may plead as loudly in favor of Russia as of England and France, the feelings and sympathies of America, the conscience and heart of the nation, which are not under the control of interest nor subject to considerations of State policy, side subject to considerations of State policy, sine with the Powers of the East in their present deadly struggle with the Powers of the West. To those who know America only from the overstrained praise of the Manchester school, who look upon her as the paradise of the poor, the land of high wages, vote by ballot, universal suffrage, no State endowments, cheap newspapers, and abundant supplies of ardent spirits, it seems almost impossible that the asy lum of liberty, the boasted fountain of the function of the supplies of the second state of the second ture civilization of the world, should in feeling if not in act be closely united to a nation and a Government the whole mission and duty of which seems to be to live in darkness and misery which seems to be to live in darkness and misery themselves, and by war and desolation to spread that darkness and misery over the face of the whole habitable globe. We will not offend the susceptibility of our correspondent by offering to him again arguments intended to induce the Quincy Railroad to that place.

people of America to reconsider this question people of America to reconsider this question and to show that duty, honor, and interest urge them alike to desire and, so far as their traditional policy and isolated position will permit, to contribute to the success of the allied Powers. The first reason given by our correspondent for a Philo-Russian feeling in America is, that a struggle between Christian na ions in arms is a struggle between Christian na ions in arms is a disgrace to the nineteenth century. We hope that this statement is correct, and well it would be for the United States and well for the destinies of the human race if such doctrines had taken firm possession of the mind of the people of ken firm possession of the mind of the people of America. The preaching of the Peace Society has failed in England because the common sense of her people tells them that peace is not a matter, like free trade or administrative reform, which it is within their own power to take or reject, but a blessing which is held, from its very nature, at the will of others, which may be lost by the will of a madman, like the Emperor Paul, and regained, as in the case of the same Paul, by the dagger of an assassin. But the United States have really before them that very option between peace and war which that very option between peace and war which is denied to members of the European confederacy, and, if they would only act on the maxim attributed to them by our correspondent, may maintain peace among themselves and with all the world. The recent aggressive war on Mexico, the armed assistance lent by American citizens to the Canadian rebellion, the destruction of Greytown, and the doctrine recently promulgated by the Ostend congress of American ambassadors with regard to the seizure of Cuba seem to afford some proof that our correspon-dent is mistaken in his estimate of American feeling, or that the United States consider them-selves as an exception to the rule they apply to their neighbors, and believe that the slaughter of "God's chief handiwork on earth" is only unjustifiable when wrought by European hands. Our correspondent further thinks that our ob-

ect-the destruction of Russian preponderance in the Black Sea-is unwise, unattainable, and in-defensible, and that were Russia to submit to such a proposition she would show herself half-fool, half-coward. But he forgets that to this very object Russia has herself formally consent-ed, and that if such consent has not been carried ed, and that if such consent has not been carried out into a formal treaty, it is only because that, by a series of the most disreputable quibbles and evasions, Russia has deliberately eluded the consequences of a principle which she has herself in the most solemn and categorical manner admitted as the basis of negotiation. The argument then comes to this—that America sympathizes with Russia because England and France demand from Russia terms which Russia herself admitted to be just and equitable grounds. herself admitted to be just and equitable grounds of negotiation. If some people are more Catholic than the Pope, surely our correspondent is more Russian than the Czar. Another cause which induces America to sympathize with the wrong against the right is that England, being a maritime power, is necessarily brought into collision with America, while France, having no commerce, has no grounds of dissension. That such jealousies may operate on the minds of a commercial nation we do not dispute, but, as they make no difference whatever in the justice of the cause for which we fight, our correspondent in no respect strengthens his cause by adverting to them, and does his nation little credit by imputing to it such motives. Then the English press actually presumes to canvass the conduct of the American people with the same freedom it exercises toward its own Government, its own institutions, and even Royalty itself. There is, we suspect, the real gravemen of the charge. America is the land of liberty, and it is lawful for her untaxed press to utter, unchecked, the most scandalous accusations are institutionally and the most bitter in the control of the charge. tions against individuals and the most bitter imputations against political parties; but if an American citizen presume, by speech or writing, to call in question the policy, the political character, or the domestic institutions of the nation if he hint that a Government which designedly gives to physical labor a superiority over intel-lectual capacity—which, while preaching non-intervention to us, sends to our European countries, under the name of ambassadors and con-suls, agents of insurrection and disorder, he is soon taught to bow to the will of the majority, and to learn that even in the land of liberty freedom of discussion on all subjects is not permitted. From this democratic censorship the press of England is necessarily exempt, and it is therefore no wonder that our American cousins should hear with impatience from writers abroad, truths that they will not tolerate from journalists and statesmen at home. The next ground of sym-pathy for Russia, is the belief of some people n America, that England and France were, under pretence of succoring Spain, meditating a Crimean expedition to the Western Hemisphere. Such an expedition could only be caused by aggressive policy on the part of America, and now, when we know that human life is so sacred in her eyes, that no contingent or prospective danger justifies war, and that all foreign interference is an "ill-paid trade," there can be, on our correspondent's own showing, no possible reason for such an intervention. We conclude, then, that our correspondent has given no reasonable or consistent grounds for American sympathy with Russia; but we believe that those for which such sympathy exists are not difficult to find. The slaveholding States sympathise with the Czar as a slaveholder; the fillibustering factions admire, as they would imitate if they could, the vast scale of his aggressions; and Democracy, claiming that its will should be above all law, sympa-thizes with a man who has established for himself the same awful exemption; and both are led by their several creeds, so contrary in appearance, so identical in fact, to hate a country where law asserts her supremacy over the will of the many or the few, and where the absolute equality of mankind is no part of the political system, and therefore serve as an excuse neither to the despotism of the one nor the tyranny of the other.

THE LOCOMOTIVE TELEGRAPH.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Commercial

Bonelli, the Italian engineer, has entirely succeeded with his "locomotive telegraph." An engine in motion at the rate of a mile in two minutes, and during a pouring rain, communica-ted, intelligibly and readily, by means of the apparatus of which Mr. Bonelli is the inventor, with another engine in motion, and with three stations on the Turin road. Thus, a train may not only announce its coming or its position along the whole line, but messages may be sent by passengers themselves. Sardinia does not often get an opportunity to lead the rest of the world in the path of improvement.

SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 2, 1855.

There was a magnificent display of flowers at the horticultural exhibition at the Mozart Hall this morning. The contributions of Miss Anderson were particularly admired. There were also strawberries in profusion, cherries, and very fine vegetables. The attendance was large and fashionable.

Four men were poisoned lately at Juneau, Wisconsin. They went to a dancing party and took with them several bottles of champagne. They hid them in a box, where, unfortunately, a bottle of bed-bug poison had been placed. Feeling thirsty during the night, the four men proceeded in the dark to the box, took out a bottle, poured out its contents into glasses and drank; some of them swallowed the draughts, the others only a portion. Instantly-but too late-finding out the mistake, the one who poured out the poisonous fluid flung the bottle through the window. Messengers were sent for medical assistance, and at the last intelligence hopes were entertained that two of them would recover, but the other two were in a very critical condition.

THE PACIFIC'S NEWS.

The details of the news are interesting, although nothing decisive had occurred either in the active operations of the war or in the en-deavors still making at Vienna to effectuate peace. The resignation by General Canrobert of the command of the French Crimean army, and the appointment to that position of General Pelissier, seems to betoken that a new war policy is to be adopted, at variance with that which has been hitherto pursued. The French army was to be reinforced by 80,000 men. The anxiously looked for debate on Lord Ellenborough's motion in the House of Lords respecting the administration of the war had taken place, and resulted, as was to be expected, in favor of the Ministry. Austria continued to negotiate, and an ultimatum is said to have been concerted with the Western powers, and sent by the court of Vienna to St. Petersburg. The friendly re-ception by Louis Napoleon of the Polish depu-tation, and the increased tone of hostility of the Paris press against the Austrian government, led to surmise, however, that the confidence French Emperor in Francis Joseph I and Count Buol was being impaired. The promise of Russia to abide by the two first points of the Vienna conferences, if Germany would remain neutral, are alleged as a temptation to the Court of Vienna to avoid declaring in favor of the Allies.

France and England have presented an ultimatum to Sweden, to which the Swedes have re-plied by incorporating their militia. The Paris Exposition has been opened; as a spectacle, the opening was a failure.

The War in the Crimea.—The last news from before Sebastopol renders it evident that a change of operations had been decided on, and that new plans of warfare were to be adopted as soon as the reinforcements expected from France, Egypt, Sardinia, and England should have arrived. General Caurobert, before resigning his command, had announced that 80. more troops would come from France, 10, 000 were expected still from Piedmont, 16,000 from Egypt, and Omar Pasha was rapidly organizing a Tartar force at Eupatoria. The alganizing a Tartar force at Eupatoria. The arlied forces would then amount to nearly 300, 000 men. The health of the army was good; the greatest enthusiasm prevailed among the

The latest news from Eupatoria was to the 29th of April. A reconnoissance had established that the neighboring village of Saal contained 25,000 Russians and large quantities of warlike stores. It was talked of occupying the village. The Russians were erecting batteries on the route from Eupatoria to Sebastopol.

Letters from the Crimea had been received as late as the 3d of May. The latest dispatches by telegraph which bad been communicated to the public are to the 12th. Gen. Canrobert telegraphs:

"We continue our works before the place Various attempts to smoke out the enemy [camouflets, or "stink-pots] have perfectly suc ceeded. Our troops continue in excellent spirits; they are full of ardor and confidence.'

A dispatch from Sebastopol says that the expedition of the allies was composed of 8,000 French and 5,000 English, under the command of Gen. Sir George Brown. It left Balaklava on the 4th, having Kertch for its destination. The first Sardmian division went straight to the Crimea.

CAMP BEFORE SEBASTOPOL, May 2. Journal of the Siege .- There was a very brilliant exploit performed by seven battalions of French infantry, in which the 46th regiment were particularly distinguished, last night, and this morning. They advanced before midnight, and seized on the Russian ambuscades under a heavy fire. The Russians came out to meet them in force-a tremendous conflict ensued, in which the French used the bayonet in repeated charges, and at last they forced the Russians back into the works, followed them, stormed the outworks of the Batterie Centrale, and tool off eight cohorns which they brought to Gen. Pelissier. In this gallant affair, which lasted until 2 o'clock in the morning, the French had 63 killed and 210 wounded, and 9 officers put hors de combat.

The obstinacy of the fight last night and this morning was sufficiently evident from the spec-tacle presented by the ground between the French lines and the Batterie de Centre. space of rubbish, broken earth, ruins of batteries, and the debris of outworks, was covered with gabions, fragments of arms, and dead bod ies, and the Russians were busily engaged in burying those who had fallen inside their lines. The firing on the left was incessant and exceedingly heavy, and the Russian artillery did their best to avenge the losses of their comrades, but probably not with much effect, although the air was much ooscured by the clouds of dust arising from the shower of cannon balls which tore along the surface, marking their course as they ricochetted among the batteries by pillars of earth dashed up by the concussion. The French replied with vigor, and from dawn till eve the contest was continued between the artillery and rangements will not be bound one to the other the Flag-staff Battery. Our batteries all day maintained a most profound silence.

About 4 o'clock this morning, it was observed on the right that the enemy's battalions were forming in co'umns in the rear of the Bastion du Mat, and in a few minutes afterwards about 2,000 men, who were most likely volunteers, made a desperate rush out of the works close to the barriere centrale, and with a loud cheer flung themselves on the French advance. For a moment their numbers and impetuosity enabled them to drive the French out of the imperfect works and ambuscades as far as the parallel, along the traverses and covered ways to the front, their bayonets flashing through the murky air in the sun, and in a few moments the Russians were driven back by the cold steel, and forced to fly hastily behind their intrenchments, which instantly opened a heavy cannonade and volleys of grape to check the pursuit of the French.

Our allies fought splendidly; and chastised the audacity of the enemy with much severity. Several Russian officers and men were taken prisoners, and the enemy with great difficulty succeeded in carrying off most of their dead and wounded, but left several of both on the ground. While this anair was proceeding, our races were going on in a hollow behind Cathcart's hill. The preparations for the secret expedition ab sorb the crmp completely. Sir George Brown, who is to command the British troops, has been waiting all this atternoon in expectation of orders to embark. The expedition will consist of the Royal Albert, Princess Royal, Montebello, &c., and all the heavily armed light steamers of both fleets; and the troops are to be the 42d 71st, and 73d Highland regiments, 700 mariners and 2d battalion rifles, one wing. Peace Negotiations at Vienna.—The latest official statement respecting the diplomatic rela-tions of the allies with Russia and Austria is contained in the following vague answer of Lord Palmerston to Sir H. Willoughby, in the House of Commons, on the 17th inst.: Sir H. Willoughby asked the First Lord of the Treasury if any propositions for concluding the war in the East have emanated from the Austrian Government, or have been transmitted through the French Government, since the last protocol of April 26, 1855; and whether the documents containing such propositions, if any, can be placed on the table of the House?

Lord Palmerston: I think I answered the same question not very long ago, and the answer I then gave I will now repeat That there have been informal communications passing between the Governments of England, France and Austria, but that we have had no formal communication upon the subject to which the honorable gentleman allverts, such as could properly be laid before Parliament.

All sorts of rumors prevail respecting the probable policy of Austria. One day it was as-erted that the Emperor himself was to leave Vienna for Galicia, and to put himself at the head of the army on the Polishfrontier; the next it was believed that the Court of Vienna believe ed that the concessions made by Russia ought to have satisfied the Allies, and that in conjunction with Prussia she would maintain the neutrality of Germany. The following extract from a let-ter from Berlin, dated May 14th, explains the feeling on the subject in that capital:

"As I have several times observed, Austria is unable to take the field for the moment, without incurring the most serious danger. Her treasury is dry; her army has been decimated by a endemic disease; and she will require at least six weeks to be in a position to declare war. "Austria has demanded from the Western Powers an army at least as strong as her own and subsidies beside. Such a demand naturally presents difficulties; and thence the present attitude of Austria is simply dictated by neces-

A very remarkable article appears in the Gazette Autrichienne. The fact that the Gazette is usually considered the organ of the Austrian Cabinet gives its statement especial value.

Commencing by a reference to the approaching meeting of the Frankfort Diet, it indicates that, if Germany unites with Austria and is ready to make sacrifices for the common cause, it will in all likelihood never be called upon for such sacrifices—for "Russia will yield to Ger-The Gazette anticipates "frightful confusion" should Germany separate itself from Austria. "They deceive themselves greatly who imagine that Austria can be compelled by Germany to observe neutrality, to abandon her western allies, or to give way to the pretensions of Russia. Through a false policy on the part of the German States, the treaty of the 2d of December can easily assume an intimate character no: desired in the capitals of Germany. If Germany refuses to support Austria, Austria must have France for a reserve. They are senseless who believe that the expedition to the Crimea has exhausted the resources of France. and that that country is at present unable to put a great army in the field. A single word in the bosom of the German Diet would suffice to cause a French army to pass the Rhine this very year. We are truly alarmed to see the phlegmatic tranquillity of so many German statesmen, who act as if their own territories were not on a volcano, threatening each instant to overwhelm them. The danger which in the beginning of the war menaced Constantinople has disappeared. The storm is now suspended above Germany, above Poland, and it is there, above all, that it will involve itself, if it is not now dispersed "

The Frankfort correspondent of the Morning Chronicle communicates to that paper a copy of an important despatch from Count Nesselrode, which had been the source of many rumors, and was considered the chef d' œuvre Russian diplomacy to alienate Austria from the cause of the Allies. It is addressed to M. de Glinka, at the Frankfort Diet, and is dated St. Petersburg, April 30th:

Sir—The negotiations at Vienna having arrived at that critical point at which it depends on the Cabinets of Vienna and London as to whether they defin tively fall to the ground or not, deem it necessary, in case of the rupture of the conferences, to state the exact position of the two questions that more particularly interest Germany.

The first has reference to the protected administration of the Principalities; the second to the free navigation of the Danube.

Both were examined and discussed in the sit-tings of the 11th and 23d of March, and were brought to a solution that obtained the approba tion of the plenipotentiaries assembled at the

It only remained to put them into the form of a treaty for the arrangements of detail implied in those papers to have an obligatory force and validity. Should the conferences be broken, this requisite formality cannot be completed, and the powers who have consented to these ar-by any formal engagement. Notwithstanding this, the Imperial Cabinet persists, for its own part, in regarding as a useful and just result that the understanding estab-lished on these two questions, invested as it is with the approval of the Cabinets, as proved by the protocols signed at Vienna. As these two articles concern the interests of Germany in a way more or less direct, we have attached, and shall continue to attach, a double importance to this result, which entirely disen-gages German interests from the Eastern question, and tends to strengthen the determination but not without a desperate resistance. The musketry was so heavy that the smoke soon obscured the scene of the conflict from sight, but the French could be seen advancing rapidly however, regard as binding upon Russia the arrangements entered upon at Vienna in reference to the Principalities and the navigation of the Danube, only so long as the German States shall maintain their attitude of strict neutrality.

I am authorized to give this assurance to th members of the Diet, and to communicate this present dispatch for the information of their respective courts. NESSELRODE.

Very Latest.—From Vienna, under date of Thursday, the following has been received: "Austria has agreed with the Western powers on an ultimatissimum to be presented to Russia. If this decidedly final attempt for peace should fail, Austria promises that she really will assume a decided attitude."

Prussia.—German papers mention a conference held at Berlin on the 12th, between M. Manteuffel, president of the Prussian cabinet, Count Esterhazy, ambassador of Austria, and M. Bismark, who represents Prussia at the Germanic Diet. A private letter says the conference was of a very important character. A union between Prussia and Austria for an arm ed neutrality is even hinted as becoming possible, and that Prussia, with a view thereto, will support the proposition which Austria is about make in the Diet for the mobilization of the Federal contingents. There is said to be some prospect of an interview, toward the end of the present month, between the King of Prussia and the Emperor of Austria.

Private letters from St. Petersburg, received in the course of the week, notice the almost absolute ascendancy of the war party in the Imperial Council, and speak of the approaching retirement of Count Nesselrode.

The Invalide Russe says that from the com-encement of the war in the Crimea, up to March 1, the Russian loss in wounded (without reckoning the dead) has amounted to 15,123.

A letter from Odessa, in the Cologne Gazette "We learn from Sebastopol that the arsenal, the magazines, and all the important edi-nices of that town bave been undermined, by order of General Osten Sacken; also, that pre-parations have been made for destroying the

A private letter from St. Petersburg, dated the 10th inst., from a high mercantile house, giving a deplorable account of the pressure on all classes in that capital; business being comparatively at an end, and the continuance of the present state of things regarded with the greatest dread in all quarters.

The Insurrection in the Ukraine.—The statement of an insurrection of the peasantry in the Ukraine is one of great interest, and the accounts hitherto given are very various. The Cras (a Polish paper published in Cracew) gives the following account as the result of its special inquiries:

"Carriers (probably drivers of arabas), who are returning from the Crimea through Podolia, narrated that in the neighborhood of Mobilew the French, although fighting against the Rustroops, were by no means ill-disposed to the Russian people, and wanted to do away with all forced labor.

"In a number of villages the excited peasantry began to maltreat their popes, and assembled together tumultuously, armed with scythes and pitchforks. With the assistance of military, acting energetically up to the very sharp orde they had, the disturbance was quieted; 40 of the rioters lost their lives and about 200 of the more prominent were taken prisoners and sent to Sieria; the less prominent got off with a plentiful dose of the knout. The villages in question re-main occupied by soldiery, and the state of feeling in Lesser Russia is described as threatening.

Great Britain .- The most important news from England is the insecure tenure of the Palmerston Cabinet. Lord John Russell is believed to have once more become the source of discord and trouble among his colleagues. The papers say he "sulks" continually. The Ellenborough motion, notice of which was given in the papers received by the America, had been made, and resulted in a majority for the Government. The gist of this motion was, that an address should be presented to the Queen, to the effect that, gratified as the nation is with the French alliance, bravery of the army and principles of the war, yet that the manner in which been conducted "has occasioned general dissatisfaction, and given rise to just complaints; that it is only by the selection of men for public employment, without regard to anything but the public service, that the country can hope to prosecute the war successfully, and to obtain its only legitimate object, a secure and honora-ble peace."

The Very Latest News.—The favorable appearance with which the English funds clos d on Thursday, was maintained on Friday, and the market exhibited buoyancy throughout the whole day, a further advance having been established of ½ pe cent.

The total advance in consols during the week has been nearly one per cent., solely from the influence of steady purchases on the part of the public, consequent upon the increasing abundance of money. They are, however, still nearly 4 per cent. below the price they touched a few weeks prevously to the announcement of the recent loan.

There is an increase of £425,982 in the stock of bullion at the bank.

BAD NEWS .- It will be seen from our telegraphic dispatches that the board of health of New Orleans have declared the cholera an epidemic in that city.

LECTURES UPON REVISION .- We are requested to say that James Edmunds, the able corresponding secretary of the Western Board of Revision, will deliver two discourses on the subject to-morrow, one at 11 o'clock A. M., the other at 8 o'clock P. M., in the Baptist Church on Jefferson street, near Eighth. Among the scholars and most intelligent friends of this cause, Mr. Edmunds is regarded as the ablest expositor of the needs, uses, and advantages of revision. He well deserves and will undoubtedly command attention.

SERVICES IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH .- Elder Henderson is still preaching in the Christian church, corner of Walnut and Fourth streets, to large and interested audiences. He preaches to-night on "The blood of Christ in the remission of sins," and will preach at the same place to-morrow at 11 o'clock and at night. His teaching commands the profoundest attention.

RELIGIOUS NOTICE .- The Rev. A. M. Bryan, of Pittsburg, will preach in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, corner of Chestnut and Floyd streets, to-morrow at 11 o'clock, A. M., and in the evening at 8 o'clock. The public are invited to attend.

Rov. G. W. Smiley will commence a series of discourses on the Sabbath (to-morrow, June 3), in Sehon Chapel, upon the "Trinity of Vested Intercessors," as spoken of in the Bible. Subject to-morrow at 11 A. M., "The Official Life of Christ in Heaven." Preaching also at 8 P. M. The public are invited.

We are requested to say that the stockholders' meeting of the Pittsburg, Cincinnati, and Louisville Telegraph Company will be held on Tuesday next at 10 o'clock A. M., instead of Monday as advertised.

Mr. Birch takes a benefit to-night, and offers a fund of amusement. This is the last night of the Wood & Christy Minstrels.

DESTRUCTION OF THE STEAMER KEYSTONE STATE-FOUR LIVES LOST .- We are indebted to our friend, Major Barr, of the telegraph office, for the following dispatch received by him:

Sr. Louis, June 2. The Keystone State was burnt in the Lower Mississippi. Cargo and boat a total loss. Three

'A HORRIBLE ACCIDENT .- A son of Mr. Gary, about four or five years old, while playing on the porch in front of the residence of his parents, on Fifth street, between Green and Walnut, fell off, and the temple of his head struck the iron railing of the fence and entered the brain several inches. He hung in that position until relieved by a gentleman who was close by. There seems to be no chance of his recovery.

The pic-nic which was to come off in Martin's woods, on Tuesday, the 5th inst., has been postponed indefinitely.

A Case Decided .- Judge McLean, of the United States Supreme Court, has overruled the motion for an injunction to prevent the Rock Island railroad company from building a bridge across the Mississippi at Rock Island. This decision probably settles that question in this country for all time to come, and in a manner, too, that justice and the interests of the majority concerned, demand. The company will proceed at once to complete the bridge.

THE ERICSSON TRIAL TRIP. - The steamship Ericsson returned yesterday from her two days trial trip—made to test her saving in fuel consumption. U. S. Engineer Charles H. Haswell, with others, went on the trip to note the result. The vessel steamed down the Bay, and out to sea for five or six hours, without stopping her engines during the whole trip. She drew 17 feet water, and carried fuel for an Atlantic voyage. The fuel used was anthracite and bituminous alternated-the latter is preferred, in the ratio of 74 to 94. The average pressure of steam was 22 pounds; vacuum 27.5 inches; and the average number of revolutions per minute Average speed for the trip 123 miles an our. Consumed, sev-eighths of a ton per hour-or at the rate of 210 tons for a trip of ten Mr. Haswell considers the result most wonderful ever obtained from any marine engine. He says also that the Ericsson is the strongest vessel in port. She is 250 feet in length; 40 feet in breadth, with 27 feet of hold. She will accommodate 140 passengers in her regular berths, and stow 1,000 tons of goods, besides fuel. Capt. Lowber, who commands the Ericsson, has been for the last fifteen years in the old line of Liverpool Peckets, and is a veteran seaman. Mr. John B. Kitching, and the gentlemen associated with him are greatly pleased with the success of the vessel. She sails for Havre on the 16th of June.

Touching the new caloric engine being con-structed for Mr. Ericsson at the foundery of Birkbeck, Furman, & Co., North Moore street, about 80 men are at work on it, and it is nearly completed. It is 40-horse power, and, compared with its predecessors, has been greatly simplified, and its cumbrous parts dispensed with-not only avoiding friction and diminish-ing expense, but effecting a great saving in space. Formerly there were four cylinders, with duplicates placed above them as pumps. The latter are done away with, under the new arrangement, and other essential modifications introduced. Mr. E. is aided in his enterprise by a well-known merchant. - N. Y. Mirror.

A barge in tow of the New St. Paul, two lighters of the Gossamer, and a barge in tow of the Jenny Lind, were sunk on the Rapids and at Montrose; they were loaded with grain and other produce. Besides the above named, there were two or three others, but we have no par-ticulars. The Gossamer arrived this morning with the upper part of her chimneys overboard Her lighters were raised (and most of the others also), but a good deal of her freight, chiefly grain, is damaged, and a portion was washed

On Saturday, while the steamer St. Croix was lying at the wharf at Peoria, two canal boats, the Messenger and Seventy-Six, were swamped by the waves during a severe wind storm, and sunk in five feet water. They were loaded with corn, consigned to this city—the Messenger having about 4,000 sacks, and the Seventy-Six 5,500 sacks. Two canal boats, loaded with lumb r, were also sunk at Peoria on Sunday, during the prevalence of a storm which passed over that place.

NEWS ITEMS.

Naval .- United States frigate Constitution sailed from Havana for Portsmouth, N. H., via Key West, on the 21st ult. During a cruise of two years and a half on the coast of Africa, she lost but two men-one overboard by accident, and the other by chronic pulmonary disease, and yet the popular belief is, that the African station is an extremely unhealthy one. The United States frigate Cumberland, bearing the broad pennant of Commodore Stringham, late the flag ship of the Mediterranean squadron, sailed from Genoa for the United States on the 8th alt.

Wisconsin Judicial Election .- The official eturns of the late election of a Supreme Judge in Wisconsin, show a majority of seven thousand and forty-eight for Orsamus Cole, over Judge Crawford. Cole was the anti-slavery, and Crawford the Democratic candidate. In 1853 Barstow, the Democratic candidate for Governor, had more than 8,000 majority over his Whig competitor. The late election turned chiefly on the constitutionality of the fugitive slave law.

Thos. Mitchell, jr., of Danville, has been unanimously elected Cashier of the Harrodsburg Branch of the Commercial Bank of Kentucky, in place of Daniel G. Hatch, Esq., resigned. His appointment takes effecton the 1st of July next.

The Secretary of the Navy has appointed Commodore Paulding to command the home squadron, in place of McCauley, whose appointment was only temporary.

Agricultural Division of the Patent Office.—
To Destroy the Wheat Fly — Take orpiment (which can be procured at any druggist's) and with lighted charcoal burn the orpiment close to the wheat, any time after sunset and before sunrise, at the time when the plant commences to flower. It should be repeated while the fly is found to exist. One ounce is found to be sufficient for six acres. Another, and perhaps equally efficacious, remedy is, so soon as the fly is discovered, or the plant shows a disposition to open its flowerets, to carry around the patch of wheat strong lights at night, the darker the better. The flies will all rush to the fires and destroy themselves.

A Case of Longevity.—Mrs. Ann Jackson, of this county, died on Saturday last, at the extraordinary age of one hundred and eight years. She was the mother of a large family of children, some of which are yet living. The oldest, a son, is now living in this county, and is himself in his eighty-nineth year.—Mt. Sterling

SPAIN, CUBA, AND THE UNITED STATES-Debate in the Spanish Cortes .- The last steamer has brought us, among other things from Spain, the official report of the proceedings of the Cortes in their session of May 3, which has been translated for the New York Times:

A resolution offered some days before, inviting the publication by the Government of the documents relating to the Black Warrior affair, was called up on the day referred to by Mr. Ordar, who accompanied his motion by a speech of some length. The Honorable Deputy directed a portion of his remarks to the "Congress of Os.end" and the conclusions at which its members had arrived, expressing at the same time his confidence that these conclusions in no way represented the feelings, opinions, or principles of the mass of the American people. "The fillibustering spirit," said Mr. Ordas, "I am rejoiced to say, before the Spanish people and the world, is a thing totally distinct from the true spirit of the people of America. people does not profess, nor does it welcome fil'ibustering policy. The Americans do not desire the policy of war, of provocation, of distrist. Their great nation, I think I have reasons for asserting, does not covet Cuba at all hazards, right or wrong, and at any cost. Not at all. It desires cordial relations and honorable peace-it does not desire fillibusterism. What then should be the policy of the people and the Government of Spain? Should it be that of the fillibusters of America? Should it be a policy of estrangement, of hostility, of war? Assuredly not. Were this the policy of our Government, it would be no national policy; it would be in conflict with the principles of justice—a policy unfit to be adopted in any relations - unworthy to be followed in any diplomatic negotiations whatever."

The Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Mr. Luzu-

riaga, replied:
He said that he should be happy, under ordinary circumstances, to produce the documents touching the Black Warrior question, because that matter was in effect closed, and he had the satisfaction to say closed with cordial good understanding on both sides. It had so happened, however, that two other questions had arisen, cotemporaneously with the settlement of the Black Warrior dispute, which, although independent of it in fact, had nevertheless several points of contact with it. Those two questions were still pending. While therefore the Gov-ernment offered no decided opposition to the production of the documents, it submitted to the discretion and wisdom of the Cortes whether some little delay in making them pub-Jic might not still be advisable.

Thy honorable Secretary then proceeded to of the El Dorado, he said, though still pending, would be promptly and satisfactorily closed. Whatever impressions the United States Government might have entertained the said of the sai ed originally, as to the claim of the Spanish commanders, in the Gulf, to exercise the right of visitation—a right always repudia-ted by the American Government—those impressions must by this time have been removed, and that Government made fully aware of the instructions given in advance to his cruisers, by the Captain-General of Culia, that they should abstain from any such pretensions, and should confine themselves to an observation of vessels bound to Havana, accompanying or following such as might appear suspicious, until their arri val within the legitimate jurisdiction of Spain.
Their right to do this was unquestionable and had not been questioned. The only thing, then, which could have complicated the affair, being the assertion by Spain of the right of vistation and the Spanish Government having asserted no such right, the whole affair reduced itself, in consequence, to a question regarding the official conduct of the commander of the and involving no principle upon which the Governments were at issue ernments were at issue.

Mr. Luzuriaga continued:

"The Honorable Deputy has spoken of a war policy, of a peace policy, of a policy which, to be frank, I have not quite comprehended. The Honorable Deputy says that it is proposed to acquire the possession of Cuba without war and by legitimate means. There are no legitimate means for such acquisition. The Spanish nation alone has a right to Cuba, and it will transfer that right to no one. It is only by a transfer of the island that lawful title can pass, and I of the island that lawful title can pass, and I have said, on a previous occasion, that the Spanish nation will never alien the Island of Cuba, for, with the island, would go the honor of Spain also. [Cries of good, good, from many Deputies.] I consequently do not comprehend that which is called the Ostend policy—or rather, I may say, it is easily comprehended if it be regarded in its true sense—a sense happily far removed from that which Mr. Ordas, with so much reason, has ascribed to the American peomuch reason, has ascribed to the American peomuch. much reason, has ascribed to the American peo-The American people is great—it is no-it is loyal. It cannot cherish these schemes for usurping what does not belong to it. It cherishes no such ideas. In America, as elsewhere, there are ambitious men, intriguers who cloak their private schemes under the disguise of the public interests—the interests of the people whom they pretend to serve.

"Entertaining in regard to the people of America the same opinion which Mr. Ordas so justly holds—sympathic.ing cordially with that people—knowing that its real sympathies are as cordially with us, though from time to time they may be clouded by these with a take the may be clouded by those who take the American name in vain—the Government of her Majesty has proposed to carry out in its relations with the United States that policy of peace which the Honorable Deputy has spoken of, but which I call the feeling of justice. I call it so, because I know no sounder basis than justice for the maintenance of cordial relations with other countries—no better foundation than justice for consolidating the interests of our own country—no ground for becoming powerful so legitimate as being just."

The Hon. Secretary then refers to his taking charge of the Black Warrior affair, as soon as he was called to office. Mr. Soule, he says, insisted on treating it on all occasions as a question of independence and national honor-always insinuating, in a very intelligible way, that it might result in war, and almost suggesting that such must be its result, necessarily. He then alludes to the retention, by Mr. Soule, until December 8, 1854, of Mr. Marcy's dispatch of June 22, of the same year. Of that dispatch he says:

"In it the Secretary of State of the United States made certain reclamations, in very vehement terms-in very strong terms. He developed, with much warmth, and with great force of reasoning, the grounds on which he sought reparation. But while using this sort of language, he treated the question as one of justice merely. He did not raise it to the level of a question of war or peace, of honor or independence. Nothing of the sort. He enforced, powerfully, the arguments which bore upon the justice of the case, but he made it a matter of justice only, and gave the most manifest demon strations of his unwillingness that it should take any other shape.

"I do not know whether the fact of his declining to treat the question as one of war or peace may explain why his dispatch of the 22d of June was not presented until the 8th of December. Another lact may perhaps tend also to explain this delay. I mean, that in the interval the conferences were held at Ostend, which Mr. Ordas has alluded. The object of those conferences, the principles put forth, and the tendencies developed there, are matter of public notoriety. All was absolutely, diametri-cally in opposition to the pacific and friendly spirit of the dispatch of June 22d, and in this may be found the reason why that paper was withheld. When the dispatch was communicated, at last, some verbal discussions took place between the Envoy of the United States and the Minister who has the honor now to address the Cortes. The Representative of the United States pressed the matter in precisely the same spirit in which he had previously pressed it. Her Majesty's Government replied as seemed proper at the ime. Her Majesty's Government was resolved to do justice, but was not willing to suffer compulsion. "The retirement of the Minister of the United States followed. He certainly sought to give to his withdrawal the appearance of a measure, if not hostile, at all events very like hostility Nevertheless, it was but an ordinary measure His political views had become at variance with those of his Government, and he had resigned his post. His Government accepted his resignation, accompanying the acceptance with expressions of good understanding and amity, as before, with the Government of Spain. This Government, therefore, in view of the despatch of June 22d, received on the 8th of December—in view of the terms with which the Government of the United States had accompa nied its change of representative in Madrid with all this confirmed by the language of the worthy gentleman who succeeded the retiring Minister, and who still worthily represents his Government here-language entirely in accordwith that used by his Government directly; this Government, I say, in view of all these things, found itself perfectly free to act, without having its action attributed to anything but its own convictions "

Mr. Luzuriaga proceeds to detail the examina tion and settlement of the Black Warrior queswith which our readers are sufficiently familiar, concluding his reference to it thus: "The Government has thus settled this ques tion, and it has done so in the conviction that it has done full justice—justice without compulsion—from the very moment when it was left free to act—from the moment when it felt that the dignity of the country was no longer in the way of being compromised by its action."

He terminates his remarks by repeating his suggestion as to the propriety of delay in publishing the documents called for until the settlement of the cases of the El Dorado and Mr

LATER FROM MEXICO.-The U. S. mail steamship Orizaba arrived yesterday morning from Vera Cruz, which port she left on the 22d

The news by this arrival is unimportant. Santa Anna was after the rebels and had reached Morelia, the capital of Michoscan, in safety. and had departed thence for Zamora westwar with a considerable force. He was greeted with bravos by the people, who would doubt-less greet the leaders of the rebels in a similar way should he happen to be victorious. Strange people, the Mexicans. On the whole, Santa Anna's prospects are thought to be on the wane.

KENTUCKY EPISCOPAL CONVENTION .- The 27th annual convention of the Protestant Epis copal Church in the Diocese of Kentucky, assembled in Trinity Church, Covington, yester-day morning at 10 o'clock. Bishop B. B. Smith presided. Rev. E. F. Berkley and R. McCurdy acted as secretaries, and Mr. J. H. Robinson

A list of the clergy canonically resident in the Diocese, and entitled to seats in the conven-tion, was called and nearly all responded to their names. The lay delegates accredited to this convention, presented their credentials, and the roll being called, they took their seats.

The following committees were appointed: On Accounts—Gev. Geo. Beckett, Dr. Alves, and D. M. Craig.

On Unfinished Business—Rev. Geo. Schetkey. Judge Churchill, and Chas. Bronson.
On New Parishes—H. M. Denison, Judge

Bentley, and J. M. Robinson.
At 11 o'clock the Rev. H. M. Denison delivered to the convention a sermon in his usual happy and felicitous manner, after which the convention took a recess until 3 o'clock.

Afternoon Session.—After the convention was called to order the following was presented and adopted: Whereas, The Rev. Robert McCurdy, having been a resident of this Diocese in good standing, for the last seven years, and regarding him to be a pious, zealous, and devoted clergyman, loyal alike to himself, to his church, and to his God. and esteeming him to be an upright christian gentlemen, whose character is not only not lia-ble to reproach but above suspicion.

whereas, the fine scholarly attainments. eminent qualifications, and large experience of the Rev. R. McMurdy, fit him peculiarly as a successful instructor of youth.

We do hereby heartily and unanimously commend his institution to all parents who are so-licitous for the best education of their daughters, and who are anxious to place them in rela tions where they will be sedulously taught in all things that tend to cultivate and refine the mind, and improve and elevate the heart.

A motion was then made and carried that the next session of the Convention be held at St Paul's Church, at Louisville, commencing on the last Wednesday in May, 1856.

The Convention then went into an election for a standing committee to serve the ensuing year which resulted in the election of Rev. H. M. Dennison, J. Craik, and Edward F. Berkley and Laymen Hon. W. Bullock and Mr. W. F.

On motion, the Convention went into the election of an Ecclesiastical Court, which resulted in the choice of Rev. Messrs. J. N. Norton, W. H. G. Jones, N. N. Cowgill, Carter Page, and Charles Page.

The committee appointed to take into consideration the affairs of Shelby College, to confer with the Trustees, with the Rev. Dr. Waller. and with the Trustees of the town of Shelby ville, asked leave to report to-morrow (Friday) which was granted.

The Convention then adjourned. In the evening divine service was held, at which a large congregation attended. The Rev. Mr. Wallace, of the Diocese of Virginia, preached the sermon.

FAILURE OF THE TOBACCO CROP IN GER-MANY .- Messrs. Messenger, extensive tobacco brokers in New York, inform their correspondents in this city that they have jutelligence of a great overflow in the tobacco regions of the Germanic States, which has almost totally ruined the crop. They also have intelligence that, owing to the high prices for all articles of consumption, there has been less planted. The average crop of the Germanic States is said to be as large as that of the United States. For these reasons Messrs. M. express the opinion that prices may go up further and continue to rule high for several years.

W. G. Kendall, the late postmaster in New Orleans, publishes a card in the New Orleans papers asking a suspension of public sentiment until the matter has undergone an investigation. In regard to the second indictment found against him by the grand jury, for abstracting a valuable letter from the post-office, Mr. Kendall enters into an explanation of the affair, which, if correct, to say the least, makes his guilt doubtful.

A fellow named Wm. Green was arrested in Maysville on Wednesday. He had in his possession forty half-dollars, some bearing date of 1834, and others 1807. Those of the latter date were very ingeniously gotten up .-Instead of a wreath of stars about the head of the eagle, they were placed about its neck, in imitation of the coin of 1807. He was committed for trial.
